

Critical Thinking

Critical thinking is an important and invaluable skill. Normally, I'm pretty good at it. However, right now I'm not. I had a panic attack this morning, and my mind is still pretty blank from it. (I'll still do my best with this).

Overall, I thought this discussion was only somewhat helpful. There were lots of good ideas that were thrown, and they covered a variety of topics. Some of them talked about going deeper than the surface (Tayler Haan). Some of them talked about editing information (Andie Huml).

However, only a few people spoke. It was one group of people out of an entire class, and I feel like points could have definitely been missed.