

Reflection on Definition

1. We should add a part that brings up the idea of “filling in the holes.” I know we talked about it in class but it did not make it in. I think we, as a class, should add it the definition.

2. The definition does not cover whether or not one has to be trying to find new information. Would it still be inquiry if someone stumbles upon information?

3. As a whole, the definition is too short. The class decided that it should only be 1 sentence. If we were to expand it, it would be able to cover more things and be more precise.